Experts in Primary Care Counselling and Psychotherapy

CPC 2008 Supervision Training ~ Tailor Made for Today's NHS Counsellor

Following the success of the 2007 course and in response to increasing demand for specialist supervision in medical settings CPC is once again able to offer a one year post graduate course in supervision for the primary care setting.

CPC combines its professional, clinical and training expertise to deliver this specialist training programme.

- Are you an experienced primary care counsellor?
- Do you wish to develop your experience to become a supervisor?
- Are you currently supervising and need further training in this specialist area?

Commencing March 2008, CPC's One Year Diploma Course will take place on 10 Saturdays, monthly throughout the year. The Course will:

- Meet training standards for supervision in line with CPC and BACP along with the training requirement of BAPPS (90 hrs)
- Meet specialist NHS requirements for supervision
- Be suitable for experienced NHS counsellors and psychotherapists from a range of theoretical models of practice
- Provide the general skills and competencies for professional clinical supervision
- Provide an understanding of the NHS organisation and context
- Clarify the roles of therapy, supervision and management
- Examine the interface between the psychological and the medical paradigm and its impact on clinical work in the NHS
- Develop an awareness of organisational, ethical, and legal issues relating to supervision in the NHS context
- Comprise theoretical seminars and supervised supervision groups
